ON PURPOSE WITH PURPOSE

A FREE GUIDE

8 Ways to Be Good to Yourself

A gentle guide to giving yourself the same care you so freely give everyone else.

Healing • Growth • Community

By Shronda Jeanine | Author of The Power of Words

on-purpose-with-purpose.org

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

You are allowed to be good to you.

Most of us are experts at caring for other people and beginners at caring for ourselves. We call it being busy, being responsible, being strong. But somewhere along the way, taking care of you started to feel like a luxury instead of a basic need.

These eight practices are small on purpose. You don't need a free weekend, a new routine, or a perfect mindset. You only need a willingness to start with one.

How to use this guide: Read one practice a day, or read them all and circle the one that made your chest tighten. That's usually the one you need first. Each practice ends with a small Try this today action you can do in minutes.

1 Set boundaries that protect your energy.

Learn to say no to commitments that drain you, and don't feel guilty about protecting your time and mental space.

TRY THIS TODAY

Pick one commitment this week and decline it with a simple, kind "I can't take that on right now."

---

2 Talk to yourself like you'd talk to a friend.

Notice when your inner voice becomes harsh or critical, and consciously shift to the kind of supportive language you'd use with someone you care about.

TRY THIS TODAY

Write down one harsh thing you told yourself today. Then rewrite it the way you'd say it to a friend.

3 Prioritize rest without justifying it.

Sleep when you're tired, take breaks during the day, and remember that rest is productive—it's how your body and mind repair and recharge.

TRY THIS TODAY

Take one 10-minute break today with no phone and no explanation to anyone.

4 Move your body in ways that feel good.

This doesn't mean punishing workouts. It could be dancing, stretching, walking in nature, or anything that makes you feel alive and connected to your physical self.

TRY THIS TODAY

Put on one song you love and move however your body wants to for the whole thing.

5 Create small moments of pleasure.

Whether it's savoring your morning coffee, lighting a candle, listening to music you love, or sitting in the sun for a few minutes—intentionally build tiny joys into your routine.

TRY THIS TODAY

Choose one tiny joy and attach it to something you already do every morning.

6 Let go of productivity guilt.

You don't have to earn the right to exist or relax. Your worth isn't measured by your output.

TRY THIS TODAY

Leave one thing undone today on purpose. Notice what actually happens.

7 Seek help when you need it.

Whether that's talking to a friend, seeing a therapist, asking for support with tasks, or getting medical care—reaching out is a sign of strength and self-respect.

TRY THIS TODAY

Call or text one person and tell them you could use support with something.

8 Forgive yourself for being human.

You'll make mistakes, have bad days, and fall short of your own expectations sometimes. Treat these moments as part of the learning process rather than evidence of failure.

TRY THIS TODAY

Finish this sentence out loud: "Today I'm forgiving myself for..."

A FINAL THOUGHT

Start with one.

You do not have to have it all figured out to begin. Choose the one practice that spoke to you, do it today, and let that be enough.

THE WORKSHOP

Permission Slips

You have permission to be you 100%.

Join the list to be first to hear about upcoming Permission Slips workshops and community gatherings.

on-purpose-with-purpose.org

Educational content is not a substitute for professional help. If you are struggling, please reach out to a licensed professional or someone you trust.
© On Purpose With Purpose. Made with intention. Rooted in growth. Open to becoming.